To Whom It May Concern,

Milford Salvage Iron and Metal is a secondary recycling center. We receive scrap metals and process over sized pieces for shipping to mills. As such we do a fair amount of torching and shearing of steel and cast iron on site. We are presently looking at installing an air handling system that will collect any smoke generated and pass through a filter system that collects the products of our processing. We have very little heavy smoke, most of our torching operations generate a smoke similar to the smoke emitted by a wood fire in a fireplace.

The system we are looking at will be placed on the pad behind the torchers and capture the smoke that is produced directly from the material being processed. We are waiting for your seminar on air quality in 2019 to finalize the design of our air handling equipment per Adam Bognar – Environmental Quality Analyst – Air Quality Division.

Sincerely,
Ronnie Miller
